

An aerial photograph of a coastline, likely in Brittany, France. The image shows a deep turquoise sea on the left, meeting a wide, sandy beach on the right. The beach is characterized by intricate, wavy patterns of sand and shallow water, creating a complex, organic texture. The colors range from deep blue to light beige, with some greenish-yellow patches near the water's edge. The overall scene is serene and captures the natural beauty of the region.

RODOLPHE MARICS

BRETAGNE À CIEL OUVERT

Cité des livres